Course Overview

Aims

The aims of the programme are to:

The, course aims to enable students to achieve ‘employability’ within the education field including the wider children, young people and family workforce by being conversant with the latest issues and policy developments that impact on education and facilitating the connection of theory to practice through directed experiential learning. As a result the destination of students is wide, some going forward to postgraduate study at Masters level, including professional courses such as PGCE, youth work and social work; some students enter the workforce directly as Family Support Workers and past students return to contribute to the delivery of the course; one is active in the promotion of race relations through the Anthony Walker Foundation. One graduate has recently returned to the university to commence a PhD.

Connectivity is developed through:

- Enabling students to draw on a wide range of intellectual resources, theoretical perspectives and academic disciplines to illuminate understanding of education and the contexts in which it takes place;
- Encouraging the interrogation of educational processes in a wide variety of contexts and developing a disposition of inquiry;
- Enabling students to develop an ethical, reflective stance towards education and their own learning and broader development;
- Promote understanding of diversity and inclusion through the delivery of modules, developing the notion of ‘the course team’ from induction and throughout the course supported by an effective programme of support through a structured personal tutor programme;
- Encouraging students to engage with fundamental questions concerning the aims and values of education in its broader sense and the relation to society;
- Providing opportunities for students to appreciate the problematic nature of educational theory, policy and practice, particularly through directed experiential learning;
- Providing students with a broad and balanced knowledge and understanding of the principle features of education in a wide range of local, national and international contexts;
- Developing in students the ability to construct and sustain a reasoned argument about educational issues in a clear, lucid and coherent manner and promote a range of qualities in students including intellectual independence and critical engagement with evidence;

The curriculum seeks to provide students with the opportunity to develop critical awareness of education by developing progression through and across levels. The Introduction to Policy in Education module, for example, develops links that are pursued in Praxis in Context and an Introduction to Education Research as well as forming the basis of the research focus on placement experience. The modules also informs study at level 5 in Social Perspectives, Inclusive Education, and Ecological Positioning in Global Education with these strands more intensely developed at level 6 through student choice. The close interlinking of theory as fundamental to practice through directed experiential learning at all levels develops students as educational thinkers which considerably strengthens their potential employability.

Teaching and Learning Activities

Summary

Teaching and learning is designed to challenge students to develop a range of approaches which enable them to make connection between the learning that takes place within formal study and the range of contexts in which the learning must be applied in educational settings.
This award offers a variety of learning methods. This award is taught through dialogue and discussion, exposition and critical teaching, assigned readings, assignments, demonstrations and presentations, portfolio preparation, which can take place in lectures, seminars, academic tutorials and through an e-portfolio, Action Learning Groups, individual tutorials, role play, projects and practical work.

Teaching and Learning approaches are based on the following principles:

- that teaching must be interpreted as the management and promotion of learning using a variety of methods and making a wide range of resources available to the participant;
- that teaching and learning must be responsive to student needs and professional circumstances and contexts;
- that students develop independence in learning and information literacy; and
- that the conditions necessary for effective teaching and learning are fulfilled.

An appropriate range of teaching and learning methods will be employed which collectively enable participants to:

- contribute to their own professional development as reflective, ethical educators;
- recognise that the underlying process of learning is to be considered as carefully as the outcome;
- seek to learn with and from their peers and colleagues and to foster a spirit of co-operative learning as well as learning independently; and
- experience learning as an open exchange between students, tutors and professional educators.

Placement experience is seen as integral to theoretical learning, students are expected to organise their own placements relevant to their personal career direction. For overseas students and students who find this a challenge a range of possible placements is available from the partnership office in addition to personal contacts. An example of this is where a student in challenging circumstances was unable to find an appropriate placement for themselves but through personal tutor contact was placed and had a valuable learning experience.

It is essential that the placement experience is seen as extending learning and understanding of key issues in education. Students must establish a focus link to theory (at each level), identify how this will be researched and identify relevant literature; on completion critically reflect on the observed experience.

Disposition of Inquiry is a key strand to the course which is developed through each level of the course, developing an understanding of research processes and practice throughout the course, culminating in the Major Independent Study and Integrated Learning project at level 6. Students are required to consider situations and issues relevant to theory, consider problems and challenges that may arise and, through personal and group research using digital sources and literature, present solutions which demonstrate secure understanding of the arguments involved. The e-portfolio is used to underpin the learning and personal development across and between levels.

Learning Support

If you have a question or a problem relating to your course, your Course Administrator is there to help you. Course Administrators works closely with academic staff and can make referrals to teaching staff or to specialist professional services as appropriate. They can give you a confirmation of attendance letter, and a transcript. You may also like to contact your Course Rep or the Students' Union Advice team for additional support with course-related questions.

If you have any questions about life at our University in general, call into or contact the Student Hub on either campus to speak to our Student Experience Team. This team, consisting of recent graduates and permanent staff, are available to support you throughout your time here. They will make sure you have access to and are aware of the support, specialist services, and opportunities our University provides. There is a Student Hub on the ground floor of the Rose Bowl at City Campus and one in Campus Central at Headingley. You can also find the team in the Gateway in the Leslie Silver Building at City Campus. The telephone number is 0113 812 3000, and the e-mail address is StudentHub@leedsbeckett.ac.uk.

Within MyBeckett you will see two tabs (Support and Opportunities) where you can find online information and resources for yourselves. The Support tab gives you access to details of services available to give you academic and personal support. These include Library Services, the Students' Union, Money advice, Disability advice and support, Wellbeing, International Student Services and Accommodation. There is also an A-Z of Support Services, and access to online appointments/registration.

The Opportunities tab is the place to explore the options you have for jobs, work placements, volunteering, and a wide range of other opportunities. For example, you can find out here how to get help with your CV, prepare for an interview, get a part-time job or voluntary role, take part in an international project, or join societies closer to home.
